

Future1000
What is it?

We have teamed up with BBC Radio host and DJ JAGUAR to create an amazing course called Future1000 that is free for schools and students/parents. Our course is designed to inspire female, trans and non-binary persons ages 12-18 through electronic music. From May to December, all participants will be able to access our 12-part course, covering the basics of DJ-ing, producing, presenting and establishing yourself in the music industry. The course is free to access, and only requires participants to have access to a computer, smartphone/device and the internet. The course has been written by FutureDJs, in line with LCME accredited courses and will be presented by JAGUAR herself. Along with our video-on-demand course, which students can study in their own time, participants will receive a free Soundtrap license and have access to live virtual sessions with JAGUAR and special guests throughout the year, and have the chance to connect with other female, trans and non-binary musicians across the country. At the end of the course, our students will have real industry opportunities as we aim to create live-time change in the industry and new opportunities for female, trans and non-binary persons.

Permission slip

To join our course, please send your school notification of permission.

This can be done by either: responding to an email with approval, or, signing and returning our form here below:

I hereby give my daughter/child permission to take part in the Future1000 campaign.

Date:

Signed